They Do More Than Count Tablets

Prescription medicines play a significant role in the treatment of life-limiting illness. At Community Hospice we have our own staff pharmacists, dedicated exclusively to the care of our patients. Barb Ross and Rhonda Cullop are acutely aware of how drugs interact, so they maintain a total drug profile on every patient.

When even a multivitamin can alter the effectiveness of a prescription drug, it is good to know that Barb and Rhonda are monitoring every medication for every patient. Sure, they count tablets, but they count every patient's comfort and well-being as priority #1.

You Are Not Alone

A life-limiting illness creates practical issues, physical demands, and emotional turmoil for the patient and for the patient's family. The new Community Hospice in-patient care center is well equipped for end-of-life care, but more homey, and far less intimidating than you might expect.

The Hospice staff is made up of competent, compassionate people, too, like Anessa, Cindy, and David: all specially trained to guide families and patients through the final steps of life's journey – and to make sure that no one has to face the end of that journey alone.
